Critical Illness

Why not start with a small initial coverage?

The Canadian Cancer Society estimates 67% of cancer treatment costs are indirect expenses not covered by provincial plans.

A little critical illness insurance goes a long way.

- Spousal loss of income during treatment
- Meals taken outside the home
- Accomodation for your spouse near the hospital
- Babysitting, home care cleaning, mowing the lawn, shovelling the snow and so on
- Unplanned dream vacations at the end of chemotherapy

You can afford to choose ... as little as $10,000 will help.

- You could fly to the USA to get a second opinion or confirm the diagnosis and thereby start your treatment plan in Canada much quicker.
- With access to the free Prompt Recovery services and Best Doctors, you can access state-of-the-art expertise and the best medical information as well as get valuable services from diagnosis to recovery.

For less than ½ the cost of a cup of coffee a day ... you can afford it!
